Students are expected to report on time for these exams just as they do for all class meetings. Students who do not have a final exam scheduled for a given exam period do not need to be on campus. No student may take an early examination. Delayed semester examinations require proof of illness or family emergency.

Students with an unexcused absence from a final exam will be assessed a penalty of at least 10% on the final exam or project at the discretion of the Dean of Students. Delayed semester exams must be taken during the scheduled make-up testing times as arranged by the Office of Academics. Grades on finals after this date will be assigned a zero.
